SOUTH AMERICA

DR. RAY DESCRIBES AT CHAUTAUQUA UNDEVELOPED WONDERLAND OF WORLD

Music for the Saturday afternoon program at the Chautauqua was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Parnell, the first named a vocalist and player of the piano-accordion, his wife a performer on the saxophone. They played several numbers in duet and he sang "The Blind Plowman," "Friend o' Mine," and "Khaki Lad."

Dr. G. Whitfield Ray, Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, was then announced and made his appearance in the costume of a gentleman cowboy of South America—full trousers of brown wool gathered in at the ankle, short-topped boots, dark shirt and fancy belt, Panama hat wound with a green scarf. He was introduced as "the Livingston of South America." He talked in a general way about South America, its vastness, its richness, its emptiness. Said he: "No white man has ever crossed Brazil. There are parts of the country as large as some of our states that are absolutely unknown. I have traveled for thousands of miles in Brazil without meeting a single civilized being.

"The continent of South America is 7½ thousand miles in length and there is great variety of climate. There are parts of Chili in which it rains every day and parts of Peru in which it has never rained. Bolivia is sixty times larger than Belgium. Peru is larger than France, Spain, and Italy combined. Dr. Hirsch says the Argentine Republic is big enough and rich enough to feed all of the inhabitants of the earth. Brazil is 200,000 square miles larger than the United States. It has within its confines tribes of Indians who have never heard of the outside world and who do not know that white men exist. A Methodist bishop who spent four years there has said if a flood should cover the rest of the world and Brazil alone escaped, everybody that lives and breathes could emigrate to Brazil and find a land large enough and rich enough to supply their needs.

"This republic of Brazil," the speaker continued, "is so large that the government could make a standing offer to give a free farm of an acre and a half to the head of every family on the globe. South America is a great empty world waiting for the population of the universe to go and settle in it.

"Bolivia is the most thinly inhabited country. It has one inhabitant to every 223 that Belgium has. A man could start for that country tomorrow and take possession of one hundred square miles of the richest land and his claim to that land would never be disputed by anybody. He might remain there all his life and nobody would ever find out he was there. It is God's last great opportunity waiting for men of vision to settle in it. It has blue sky 320 days in the year, a rich soil that yields four crops a year, ripe straw-

LOSS TO HIGH SCHOOL

PROF. HARRY HOWE ACCEPTS SUPERINTENDENCY OF THE COACHELLA H. S.

Prof. Harry L. Howe, who has been with the Glendale Union High School continuously since 1907 and who has been vice principal for several years, has accepted the superintendency of the Coachella Valley Union High School and will move there this summer, in time to open the fall term, about the middle of September.

The district takes in practically the entire valley and the towns of Coachella, Indio, Mecca and Thermal. The grounds and buildings are 3½ miles from Coachella and only 1½ miles from Prof. Howe's 160-acre ranch. There is a "teacherage" on the grounds for the superintendent's family to live in.

Prof. Howe and wife are valued members of the First Presbyterian church and he is not only a member of the official board, but a great Sunday school worker. Every uplift movement in the city has had his hearty co-operation.

The home in Glendale will not be sold, Prof. Howe announces, and that leads to the hope among the many friends that the family may again become residents of our beautiful city.

Miss Winifred Bacon, who has been very ill of typhoid fever, is much better and is expected to be well enough to sit up in the course of a few days.

"THE SECRET PLACE"

PASTOR OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH RETURNS AFTER SHORT VACATION

It was with unalloyed thanksgiving and happiness on Sabbath morning that the congregation of the Presbyterian Church welcomed the return of the pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, from his short vacation for rest and recreation. His sermon was taken from the 91st Psalm, "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High, shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty." Following are a few thoughts taken from it: No one can get into the 91st Psalm and let it get into them without having a new vision. David was giving his real experience—giving the wonderful truths which had been so near and dear to him—namely the beauty and blessedness of living in the secret place. This secret place, it is neither the sanctuary, nor the upper room, nor the closet with its closed door. It is not in any place that is bounded by four walls. We have no word in our language which expresses this secret place, but in the Greek it means an experience or an indwelling; it is where the Lord reveals His covenant, the understanding between God and man. It is a holy place, a trysting place, a cleansing place. We need to know what it is to have our sins put away. It is a safe place. Under His wings we may trust. We may know the protecting power of God. It is a place of power. In the philosophy of Jesus Christ it is a sin to be weak, it is casting reflection upon Jesus Christ; the secret of strength is in the Lord Jesus Christ. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary, and they shall walk, and not faint." It is not so much what you do as what you are. This secret place is a place of peace. "Great peace have they that love thy law." The secret place is for one who is walking in daily fellowship with Jesus Christ. No one can compel you to go into this secret place of the Most High, you can go or not just as you please. Do you know anything about this secret place? Do you have a trysting place where you meet your Lord? It is a blessed experience open to all the sons of God. God grant that you may accept of it.

AMERICAN LEGION

SPECIAL MEETING FRIDAY EVENING TO SPEED MEMBERSHIP PUSH

Friday evening a special meeting of the American Legion Post was held to arrange for the membership "push" which opened this morning and lasts through the 22nd. Mrs. Emma V. Bacon was present and talked on the carnival which is to be held this month by members of the Post and Auxiliary, to start a fund with which to buy a lot to build a hall on. This carnival is to be one of unusual proportions, with booths presided over by members of all Glendale organizations.

The "push" was arranged for by dividing the city into four districts with Brand and Broadway as the dividing lines with a chairman for each. Chas. A. Nagle is in charge of the northeast section, Chase Story of the southwest, A. T. Wright of the southeast and E. P. Hayward of the northwest. Every house is to be visited and solicited for members of the Post and Auxiliary, and the services of the officiary freely offered to service men and their families in any matter where help is needed—such as the transfer or reinstatement of insurance, looking up of lost baggage, etc. A communication from national headquarters was read, suggesting that each Post telegraph congressmen and senators at once, urging them to not allow ways and means committee to defeat relief measure for service men now before congress and to insist on passage of the bill before the summer adjournment. This action was promptly taken by the Post officers and Congressman Randall and Senator Phelan were wired.

The Misses Garnet and Fern Peters entertained the Intermediate Christian Endeavor Society of the Central Christian Church last Friday evening at their home at 209 N. Orange street. After a short business meeting a delightful evening was spent, with a climax of delicious refreshments. The C. E. Society is a live one and they are making some great plans for the near future.

THE SIMS CONTROVERSY

DANIELS SEES IN SIMS' ATTACK ON NAVY DETERMINATION TO SUBORDINATE IT TO ARMY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, May 17.—"An effort to Prussianize the American navy and make a rubber stamp of its civilian head is behind the attack led by Rear Admiral Sims," Secretary of the Navy Daniels said today. In resuming his testimony before the Senate Investigating Committee Daniels turned his heaviest guns on Sims and those supporting him. "If you have not already seen the cloven foot you will find a deep-seated determination to organize the navy department upon the approved Prussian plan by giving all power to the military," he said.

MILITARY PRECAUTIONS IN IRELAND

BRITISH TROOPS LANDED AT BANTRY ISLAND FOR DISTRIBUTION THROUGHOUT COUNTY CORK

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, May 17.—More than two thousand British troops were landed at Bantry Island about fifty miles west and south of Cork, according to advices received here today. The troops will be distributed throughout west Cork at points five miles apart. The British troops will land near the same point where the French troops attempted the invasion of Britain through Ireland in 1689 and 1786. A detachment of 150 unexpectedly occupied the town of Skibbereen, 12 miles south of Bantry. They commandeered several buildings including the town hall. The movement was believed here to be the first indication of new repressive measures planned by General Macready, commanding British forces in Ireland.

FRENCH STILL UNEASY

DEMAND FORFEIT OF MILLION MARKS BY GERMANY ON WITHDRAWAL OF FRENCH TROOPS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, May 17.—As a guarantee against possible demonstrations by citizens of Frankfort and other German cities in the neutral Rhine territory when the French troops are withdrawn, beginning today the French have demanded that the Germans deposit a forfeit of a million marks and deliver six hostages, a French dispatch by way of Berlin said today.

CHINESE STUDENTS GO BACK TO STUDIES

STRIKE BY 3,000,000 STUDENTS PROTESTING AGAINST DIRECT NEGOTIATIONS WITH JAPAN, BROKEN

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

SHANGHAI, China, May 12.—(Delayed in Transmission.)—Three million Chinese students who rose in rebellion April 14th against the Peking military government's direct negotiations with Japan in connection with the Shantung settlement, went back to their class rooms today. The strike was broken.

WAGE INCREASES TO RAILROAD MEN

RAILROAD OWNERS NOW DECLARE TO LABOR BOARD THEIR WILLINGNESS TO GRANT DEMANDS

CHICAGO, May 17.—Railroad owners through E. T. Whitter, chairman of the conference committee of railroad managers, today told President Wilson's labor board here they were ready to grant wage increases to employes. The extent of the increases was not specified. It will be left to the board. Wage increases, according to Whitter, will be passed on to the public in the shape of increased rates in passenger and freight service.

"We are here in good faith and not to argue that all of the workers' requests should be denied," he said. "We appreciate fully that increases received by employes in the last five years have not been commensurate with increases in the cost of living."

CARRANZA'S CAPTURE EXPECTED

VILLA FORCES READY TO TAKE HILL TRAILS IN PURSUIT IF HE ESCAPES FEDERAL CAVALRYMEN

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Word of Carranza's capture was momentarily expected by government officials here today. Advices to revolutionary headquarters said the former first chief was a fugitive in the mountains, hotly pursued by rebel horsemen. Military experts here said Carranza is confronted with surrender or suffering with hunder and thirst in the desolate mountains. Poncha Villa and a picked few of his followers were reported ready to go into the hills on Carranza's trail should he succeed in eluding the federal cavalrymen.

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The Supreme Court today again failed to hand down its decision on prohibition. No decision will now be made before June 7th. The court previously planned to announce decisions on June 1st.

NEW MINISTER

ELDER W. D. MAC LAY ACCEPTS PASTORATE OF SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST CHURCH

Elder W. D. Mac Lay, recently of Pasadena, has accepted the pastorate of the Seventh-day Adventist church in Glendale. At the regular church service Saturday morning he was formally introduced to the congregation by Elder K. W. Reaser of the Pacific Union Conference. The subject of the discourse which was delivered by the new pastor was "The Christian Race."

In a few well chosen remarks Elder Mac Lay expressed his pleasure in answering the call to the Glendale church. "I have not yet learned to say no to a call to duty," he said. "When I was asked to go to Europe and to Africa some time ago, I said 'I will go'; so now I say to this latest call, 'I will go.'"

Using Hebrews 12:1 as a basis, Elder Mac Lay compared the Christian life to a race in which, contrary to the rule of races, all contestants may run and all win. "Nations of the world vie with each other for the supremacy," he continued. "There is no unselfishness in this race however, and force of arms brings the spoils to the strongest. Within the nations classes and clans wrestle for the pre-eminence with wealth or strength as allies. Pity has no place in the hearts of opposing factions."

"In the Christian race for the prize of eternal life all may compete, each may help the other, and still all win the laurel wreath of victory. Yet there are obstacles in the way, chief among which are worldly schemes and methods and the cares of life. None of these should be allowed to trip up the runner nor impede his way. In the life of Christ we find no trace of these elements.

"The first essential to the Christian is to find the right road, then ascertain if he is going toward the objective or from it. A tourist in Scotland seeking the way to one of the old castles asked a chance acquaintance if he were on the right road. Judge his surprise when the tourist learned he was traveling away from the castle instead of toward it, though he was on the right road. Do you know which way you are going?

"Those who are most likely to win are those who keep running; not those who loiter by the way to investigate the bypaths of worldly pleasure."

DEATH OF MRS. J. B. MANSON

Mrs. J. B. Manson passed away Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. N. McGillis at 1003 East Lomita avenue. She was eighty-one years old and was born in Forsyth, Ga. She leaves two sons, S. F. Manson of Glendale and T. J. Manson of Chattanooga, Tenn. She is also survived by a sister, Mrs. S. E. McCroan of Hinesville, Ga. Funeral services will be held today at 3 o'clock in the parlors of the Jewel City Undertaking Company with interment in Grand View cemetery. The services will be conducted by Dr. Clyde Monroe Crist and Rev. C. R. Norton.

GRAND VIEW LIGHTING SYSTEM

The inability of the city to obtain one little item of material is holding up an important and long promised improvement—the completion of the city lighting system in the Grand View district. The necessary poles and wire have been on hand for some time and the poles have been prepared for placing in the ground and for receiving the wires, while the extension arms for the lamps are ready to be placed, but the hoods for the lamps cannot be had. They have been ordered for weeks and until they arrive the work will not be undertaken. The residents up there are waiting quite impatiently for the improvement and some of them have their houses wired already.

VISIT GLENDORA

Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Anderson accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sam G. Wooley, Mrs. C. R. Norton and Doty, Helen and Hazel Anderson, motored to Glendora Sunday and were guests of Mrs. F. W. Anderson, who formerly lived in Glendale but is now a resident of Glendora. A picnic lunch was enjoyed in San Dimas Canyon, which is a short distance from Glendora. The entire party with the exception of Mrs. Norton, returned to Glendale the same evening. Doty L. Anderson, who has been employed in the office of the Glendale Taxi Company has resigned his position and in a few days will join his parents in Glendora.

METHODIST SERVICES

"GOD'S GARDEN, THE HUMAN SOUL," THEME OF PASTOR CRIST'S SERMON

Large audiences assembled both morning and evening at the First Methodist Church yesterday. In connection with the morning service there was the baptism of adults and the reception of members. Dr. Crist's sermon theme was "God's Garden—the Human Soul." The text was from Songs of Solomon 4:16, "Awake, O north wind; and come, thou south; blow upon my garden, that the spices thereof may flow out." Dr. Crist said in part:

"The Soul is God's garden. In the revised rendition of I. Cor. 3:9 we read 'Ye are God's tilled soil.' The most beautiful flowers are not the rose, the violet or the lily, but those that bloom in the soul. From these the fragrance of heaven is wafted out over a weary world. The chief concern of us all should be the formation of a character that will please God and bless men. If this character can be formed only through suffering then let us willingly suffer. 'Awake O north wind'! The chilling blasts of winter with its ice and snow are necessary to the most perfect vegetation. A country without its winter season will produce a luxuriant growth but its fruits are comparatively insipid and its flowers lack aroma. Tropical religion like tropical fruits and flowers lacks spice and flavor. If the north wind experiences contribute to 'the peaceable fruits of righteousness in the soul, then let us bravely petition God to send them upon our garden.

"The second petition, however," said Dr. Crist, "is of equal import with the first, 'Come thou south.' To do one's best there must be the full share of sunshine. After the winter season the south wind blows softly and in the glory of the spring sunshine the earth revives. There can be no garden without the summer time.

"The sufficient motive for it all is to be found in the closing clause, 'That the spices thereof may flow out.' Solomon's ultimate purpose was most praiseworthy,—that others might be blessed!"

TENNIS FANS FROLIC

MR. AND MRS. R. L. M'COURT ENTERTAIN WITH A JOLLY "CHILDREN'S" PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McCourt gave a royal good time Saturday evening to members of the Tennis club with which they are identified to the number of about twenty-two. The guests are so intimately acquainted that the very fact of being together insures entertainment. This time the guests, who were all adults, came dressed as children and in those characters they had a jamboree of fun. Late in the evening "Tony, the Balloona Man" arrived with his arms full of balloons for the children and after that the fun centered around him. Llewellyn White of Eagle Rock filled the role to the great satisfaction of his comrades in joy. There were games and diversions of other sorts for which music was supplied by a Los Angeles pianiste imported for the purpose. About midnight a supper was served. The guest list included: Mr. and Mrs. Everett Messerly, Misses Elizabeth and Katherine Messerly, Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn White, Dale White, Mr. and Mrs. John Southard, Mr. and Mrs. W. Reed Heustis, Mr. and Mrs. James Mullin, Mr. and Mrs. John Robert White, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Richmond Lane, Mrs. Madge Hardenburg, Mrs. Dorothy Bell and Mr. Casey of Los Angeles.

AMERICA'S GIFT TO FRANCE

Thirty-five years have slipped away since Bartholdi's titanic Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World—gift of the people of France to the people of America—was erected on Bedloe's island in New York harbor, in commemoration of a century of American independence. The real significance of the event was the public testimony thus given of popular appreciation in France of the spirit and achievements of the people of the United States.

In obtaining their liberty Americans gave impulse to the movement through which French liberty was accomplished a few years later. The government of France might have presented the statue in the name of the people to the American government for the people of this country. But that would have robbed the gift of its important significance. The cost of the monument to international affection was contributed in small sums by hundreds of thousands. Sous of the poor and humble were mingled with the francs of the rich and powerful in one great fund expressive of French national sentiment. The Statue of Liberty Englihtening the World is the visible emblem of France's love for America.

Now Americans are to present to the French a testimonial of their affection, respect and appreciation that shall be as enduring, so far as human hands can make it, as the devotion of both peoples to the noble spirit concept of the motto of France: Liberty, Equality, Fraternity.

This week the people of the United States have the opportunity—it should be availed of as a high privilege—to contribute to a fund of $250,000 for the erection of a monument near Meaux, on the banks of the Marne where Marshal Joffre turned back the Huns on their first sweep toward Paris. This will be a monument of the American people's good will to the people of France. It is desired that as many as possible contribute that it may be a truly popular expression. School children and bankers, artisans and manufacturers, laborers and professional men, every one may give. A sum will be as welcome if of only a cent as one of a dollar. Many small contributions are preferable to a few large ones. It is the spirit of the gift that will count now and in the ages to come. Let each one do his or her share.

THE PHILIPPINE JUNKET

The proposed junket to the Philippines on the part of a large body of congressmen appears not to be enthusiastically indorsed by the people of the country. When the urgent demand is for greater economy in government expenditures a trip of this nature at government expense is regarded as not in harmony with the sentiment of the times. It is true that the cost would not be great compared with total government outgo, but "many a mickle makes a muckle." Many small expenditures totaled amount to a great sum.

The ostensible purpose of the proposed trip is to look over our outlying possessions in order to learn of the needs of those islands. The plan to take in Japan and China on the way is predicated on the proposition, probably, that since those lands are so near to a direct line of travel, it would be a shame not to visit them. Some members of committees having to do with affairs of our island possessions might have good cause for a visit, but the same reason could hardly extend to congressmen in general. Besides, a large party heralded as an official one would have far less opportunity to ascertain official needs and conditions than half a dozen men, or a lesser number, who might drop in unannounced. Knowing a delegation was coming those who might hope to reap some profit from the visit of the congressmen to the islands would have the stage properly arranged to show just what they would want seen.

It is estimated that the junket, if taken, will cost $1,000,000. If such an expenditure were necessary and in the line of better service none would object. If it is a summer excursion but thinly disguised, it is unwarranted. If it really is a business trip the circuitous route planned, via the Panama Canal, Japan, China and San Francisco, would seem unnecessary.

This is no time for junketing at the expense of the public till.

The first grass fire of the season called out the fire department Saturday. These will doubtless be very frequent from now on unless people are very careful as there are so many vacant lots covered with a thick growth of weeds and grass. A fire should never be started on one of these lots, especially if the wind is blowing.

Mrs. E. D. Potter and her son, H. D., of 244 North Verdugo Road, returned recently from an auto trip to Yosemite and Oakland. They were accompanied by Mrs. Potter's sister and niece, Miss M. C. Day, and Mrs. M. E. Bush, both of Pasadena. The trip was up through the San Joaquin Valley and back to the coast route. Mr. Potter says the crops look very good, especially along the coast.

S. T. Rush and wife bought F. M. Shumate's residence property at 324 Lexington Drive a few days ago and have moved in. They came to Glendale from San Dimas, where they had owned an orange grove, about two years ago, and for 16 months Mr. Rush was in the Glendale Sanitarium on account of a paralytic stroke suffered while still on the ranch. He is gaining strength slowly now.

Mrs. W. D. McRae of 634 North Kenwood was driving south on San Fernando Road Saturday evening and when she gave the signal for turning in on Doran, Mrs. Edith Schallmo of 2000½ S. Main street, Los Angeles, who was driving very rapidly behind her failed to see the signal, she claims, and, to avoid striking Mrs. McRae's car made a quick turn to the right and crashed into a pole. The top and windshield of her auto were smashed and she and a companion, Mrs. M. E. Johnson, were injured, both being rushed to the Glendale Sanitarium, where they were given treatment. Their hurts were not serious.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

MRS. LELA K. DYE DESCRIBES CHAUTAUQUA WORK IN AUSTRALIA

Australia, the commonwealth of the Southern Seas, was described in all its beauty and glory last night at the Christian Church by Mrs. Lela King Dye, who has superintended the Chautauqua here during the last week. Mrs. Dye recently paid an extended visit to Australia and New Zealand as director for the Ellison-White System and was prepared to give a vivid and most interesting description of the people, their cities, their customs and habits and manner of conducting affairs, of the natural beauties and wonders, of the climate and products of this far-away land. The large audience present was pleased with the lecture.

At the morning service Rev. Cole spoke on "Love and Spiritual Gifts," emphasizing that the attainments and gifts of life avail nothing without love, that all substitutes for love in the Christian's life are unavailing and that it is the supreme test of discipleship. Tribute was paid to the ministry of prophecy which in the present age is the preaching of of the Gospel. The love of men for God has prompted such toil and sacrifice in proclaiming His Word as are not surpassed in any sphere. "Follow after love, and desire spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may prophesy," was the text and basis of the sermon. The quartette composed of Mrs. Floyd Mercer, Mrs. F. W. Pigg, Messrs. Harry Marple and F. F. Cole, sang special numbers at both services.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. C. L. Marlenee and Mrs. Dorothy Armstrong Welcome gave a recital at the Marlenee home on Central avenue. The program was furnished by pupils from Alhambra, Los Angeles and Glendale and about twenty mothers and pupils were present. At the close of her number each performer received a little French bouquet, and at the close of the program the children were entertained with games and served with refreshments.

George Babcock, father of Mrs. H. E. Fry of Cerritos avenue, has been quite ill for the past two weeks of a severe cold and intestinal trouble, but is better.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Horne of 1445 Valley View Road have just returned from a week-end trip to Catalina during which they caught 34 mackerel. Mr. Horne is quite a lucky and celebrated fisherman and last year made the record catch at Catalina for the biggest tuna. They report the fish are not running very well right now.

BRITISH OFFICIALS REALLY PRISONERS

By WEBB MILLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

DUBLIN, (By Mail).—A situation unparalleled in the checkered history of Ireland exists here today—where the police instead of protecting the people have to be protected from the people and the officials charged with the government of the country are practically prisoners in the government buildings.

Since the inauguration by the extremist wing of Sinn Fein of the campaign of terrorism the government has been forced to evacuate over three hundred outlying police stations and concentrate their forces in large fortified barracks for defense. This leaves wide areas in the south and west of Ireland without police "protection."

At the same time a number of the higher officials at Dublin Castle are virtually prisoners within the castle for their own protection. Following the murder of two of the castle officials—Alan Bell and Commissioner Redmond—the other higher officials have been forced to take refuge within the castle enclosure. Several have received anonymous warnings that they would be shot if they appeared in public.

Among the officials thus "interned" for their own protection is Sir John Taylor, Undersecretary for Ireland. For more than four months Taylor has not set foot outside the narrow confines of the castle yard, except on a few occasions when he visited the Viceregal Lodge on urgent business. On these occasions he entered an armored-car within the yard and was completely hidden from view in the interior of the car.

Even within the yard the officials do not feel entirely safe because there is always the chance of a sniper's bullet from the buildings surrounding the castle.

Naturally such a life involved a severe mental strain upon the officials and their families. In fact, the Sinn Feiners declare that Ian MacPherson was near a physical breakdown and assert that his resignation was largely due to the campaign of terrorism. When MacPherson left Ireland for the last time, he was driven to the boat at Kingston in an armored-car. The car drove out on the pier to the end of the gang-plank and just before the plank was hauled in, MacPherson hurried aboard the boat.

"The Sinn Feiners have spies watching the castle every minute of the day and night," said Sir John Taylor. "At this very moment their spies are stationed outside the castle gate—sometimes they lounge about the street opposite and sometimes they are concealed in the buildings facing the entrance. It is very difficult to catch them, but we know they are there. They have a marvelously organized secret service system. The movements of any government officials to and from the castle are known to them within a few minutes.

"Even my wife and daughter are shadowed when they go on a shopping tour. On a recent occasion they were followed constantly—the shadowers changing several times during the afternoon. They were so frightened they seldom go out now."

Sir John himself has been warned that he would be shot within a hundred yards of the castle on sight.

THIS OUGHT TO MAKE THE PUBLIC FEEL GOOD

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(United Press).—Here's a little incident that will make the profiteer-oppressed people happy.

Representative Kreider, Pennsylvania, a shoe manufacturer, strolled into a Washington store where he noticed some shoes from his factory. He tried on a pair and asked the price.

"That shoe costs you $7.50," the clerk replied. Noticing Kreider's surprise, the clerk added:

"That shoe costs us $6.75."

But the clerk had made a poor guess as to the identity of his prospective customer.

"You're a liar," Kreider said, "and your store will never buy another shoe from my factory. That shoe costs you $3.95.

berries from your garden every day in the year, an abundance of rainfall; you can get 100 sq. miles of land a great deal cheaper than you can get 100 acres here and in a climate of perpetual spring.

"I saw in South America, British, Germans, the French, men of all nations except Americans. We have such a big, undeveloped place of our own we have not had time to think of any other land.

"The Argentine is flat. It has the longest stretch of level railroad in the world. The track does not vary one inch up or down or from side to side.

"In Brazil are two and a half million square miles of timber, giant trees; twelve to fourteen men would hardly be able to reach around a single monarch of the forest. There are millions of trees like that in Brazil. The western part is all made up of mountains. There are thirteen mountains three miles high and several three and one-half miles high. You can travel through the clouds on a railroad car in a journey to Peru. It costs 11c a mile. When you are 16,800 feet above the sea you cross a bridge and when conditions are favorable the engineer has instructions to stop and give you the sight of your lives. You see a violent thunder storm beneath you. The rumble of the thunder comes up and at the same time you can turn your eyes to the heavens and see the glorious blue sky.

"Between Bolivia and Peru is Lake Titicaca at an elevation of two and one-half miles. This lake which is at the head of a vast plain receives the waters of surrounding mountains that are three and one-half miles high. There is a burning mountain that is a mile and a half higher than Vesuvius.

"The rivers of South America are marvelous. The La Plata River one thousand miles up stream is sixteen miles across and three thousand miles from its outlet is nearly one mile across.

In the north the Amazon River is 180 miles wide at the mouth. An island in the mouth is estimated to be as large as the whole state of Massachusetts. American gun boats go up that river for 300 miles.

"In its cities South America is not behind the times. Rio Janeiro has been called the earth's most beautiful city. The streets are 140 feet wide and are swept with vacuum cleaners. The sidewalks are of black and white marble mosaic. The city has beautiful buildings and an opera house that cost $5,000,000.

"Buenos Ayres has docks that cost $85,000,000. No other city on earth has docks that cost that sum. It has a population of about 850,000 and is growing at the rate of 5000 a week. It has been building houses at the rate of 45,000 a year for the past seven years in an effort to keep up with the demand. It has a $4,000,000 newspaper office and a $4,000,000 club house and the club has $14,000,000 in its treasury that it doesn't know what to do with. Buenos Ayres is the richest, most up-to-date city on the globe. It is also the world's great infidel city and its palaces are given up to the devil.

"If you go away from the cities into the interior different relations prevail. In South America we find the world's highest civilization and also the world's lowest savagery.

"Argentina's wheat fields are ten, fifteen and twenty miles in extent and in that vast tract you will find not a stone nor a piece of wood. During the last ten years Argentina has developed into the greatest cattle country in the world; and there are so many sheep in that country that if you were to place them twelve abreast they would reach from New York to San Francisco. Horses are so numerous that they kill them to feed the pigs."

The speaker then showed the beautiful trappings used by South American horsemen, spurs, stirrups and bits, all of solid silver and beautifully ornamented. The bit, he said, often costs thirty times as much as the price of the horse. He credited the Spaniards with bestowing one benefit on the New World in the introduction of horses which have multiplied to enormous numbers on the rich pasturage. They are not lassoed by the cowboys but are caught with a three-stranded rope, each strand terminating with a ball wrapped in rawhide which is whirled, catches the animals around the legs and trips them up.

The cowboys, he said, plant nothing and eat only meat, and he dwelt at considerable length on their vigor and healthiness on that diet, which, he said, had practically become his own.

He stated that he went to South America first as a missionary following that calling for seven years. He then became an explorer for the Bolivian government, his excursions sometimes taking him 1500 miles from a railroad. On these trips, he had no tent, no bed, and month after month lay out under the stars at night. On these journeys he and his companions ate anything they could shoot. Sometimes it was anacondas, and he explained that the meat of snakes is very good if you know how to cook it. Sometimes it has vultures' eggs or ostrich meat or parrots, and sometimes they were reduced to monkey meat, but he didn't like that, saying it seemed too much like eating your baby brother.

Among the Indians of the interior he one day discovered an Indian different in appearance from any he had ever seen before. He was a visitor to the tribe and on inquiry he learned the man belonged to a people known for their fierce bloodthirsty savagery. Finding that the man could speak a dialect he had learned, he conversed with him and was treated with considerable contempt and told that no white men had ever penetrated to the strange Indian's country because they had never been permitted to live. This information did not frighten Dr. Ray who set himself to gain the friendship of the man who finally confided he was the medicine man of his tribe and all powerful in it. By presenting him with a present each day for quite a period of time Dr. Ray at last won the regard of the Medicine Man whose name was "Father of Kittens" and he was eventually invited to accompany him to the dwelling place of his tribe. He accepted and the story of his adventures formed an interesting chapter. It was a long journey and at the end of it he found a race of splendidly developed men, living unsheltered and naked except for such adornments as they chose to wear or were bestowed upon them as honors. The women when in full dress wore armlets and bracelets and anklets of gay feathers and a brief skirt of white ostrich feathers. These Indians never bathed but at intervals scraped off the dirt. Their dirty, tangled hair served as a nest into which to stick their feather headpieces of adornment. When a girl desired marriage she dyed her face yellow as an invitation to marriageable swains. A youth who desired her would go to the forest and gather a bundle of sticks which he would place beside her while sleeping and steal away without waking her. In the morning when the maid discovered the sticks and knew her hand was sought in marriage the word was passed from mouth to mouth until it reached the ears of "Father of Kittens," who then ordered the youth to proclaim himself. He would ask the maid if she desired the husband and on receiving an affirmative answer would bid the couple depart. The newly-wedded husband would then pull out enough of his wife's hair to make a wide leg band which was the mark and insignia of the married estate.

It was the custom of the tribe to permit only two children to a family and when more came they were put to death by "Father of Kittens." He had a stone club for the purpose which the lecturer exhibited, later explaining how it came into his possession. Also, when men or women became too old to be useful to the tribe they were notified of their fate by "Father of Kittens," a grave was dug and they were buried alive, with water and food placed near to sustain their spirits presumably. All their belongings were placed on the grave and burned and the relatives of either babes or adults thus put to death blackened their faces as a sign of mourning and went away.

While he was learning these things Dr. Ray was insinuating himself into the affections of these wild people, especially "Father of Kittens" and telling them the story of salvation. They received it gladly and were always asking him to tell more of those "good words." Finally "Father of Kittens" came to him one day with his stone club of execution and informed the doctor he had decided to kill no more babies and to order no more old people buried alive. He did not wish to see the club any more and asked the doctor to keep it. This conversion brought great joy to Dr. Ray, as did also the conversion of a woman who had murdered four of her own children and had seen the skull of her own son kicking around the camp. Said the doctor: "If you could visit that camp fifteen hundred miles from a railroad you would see that poor, wild woman clothed and in her right mind. I believe in mission work."

Dr. Ray told of his adoption into the tribe, of being tattooed with the tribal emblem and the special tribal head-dress and other adornments made for him which in the headgear were not much unlike the fringe of feathers that has been adorning the brims of women's hats recently in this country. These adornments he exhibited. He told of the faith in prayer developed by "Father of Kittens" and of its reward in time of famine when supplies of game failed and the people were starving. Then "Father of Kittens" went alone into the forest and prayed and miraculously, as he believed, discovered and killed two deer and two ostriches and thus relieved the necessities of his tribe.

The speaker declared he had grown fond of the people, that they desired him to remain with them and had released him on promise that he would return, which he expected to do as he was only "on a visit" to this country.

Hung upon the curtain were colored portraits of some of the Indians he had described, and at the close of his lecture many persons went forward to shake hands with the doctor and examine his curios.

Saturday Evening

The evening audience was quite large and was very appreciative. The Parnells gave the opening part of the program with songs, readings and impersonations, closing with saxophone and accordion duets. Both are high-class artists in their line and Mrs. Parnell, in her explanations of the various features of their program, won the audience completely by her charming manner. She referred in terms of highest praise to the lecture of Judge Fred G. Bale, which followed her and her husband's part of the program.

Judge Bale's lecture was a fitting climax to the series of talks of the week on the general topic of Americanization, which the Chautauqua management has with commendable wisdom, been giving great prominence to in its programs this season. Mr. Bale was for six years judge of the Juvenile Court of Columbus, Ohio, and during that time many thousands of boys and girls faced him, charged with various crimes. The statistics he gathered during these years from the records of his own court and from many other sources all over the nation enabled him to speak with authority on the causes leading to juvenile delinquency. It is not necessary to give the appalling figures on the number of degenerate and defective young people in the nation but he places the burden of the blame on two principal agencies—the parents for lack of proper training in the home, especially on sex subjects, and our system of education, which gives not enough general attention to the physical well-being of the pupls except those engaged in the popular games, and which does not provide enough teachers to give individual attention to pupils and a study of their varied needs. Instead of one teacher to 76 pupils the average all over the country, he said no teacher should be required to handle more than 15 pupils. In this vital matter, the training of the future citizens of this great republic, expense should not be considered, he said. We spent more money for automobiles last year, he declared, than for schools, colleges and universities, and the national government appropriated 250 times as much money for the care of live stock and plant growth as for education. We, as a nation, care infinitely more for the breeding of our hogs and cattle, then for our children. One striking statement of the speaker was that in his work as judge of the juvenile court he found that there was hope of reform for every class of criminal except the confirmed cigarette smoker, who seemed to have had all ambition and moral sense burned out of him.

Closing Program

Sunday afternoon the last session in the big brown tent was held by the Chautauqua and its entertainers were reluctantly relinquished by a big audience which freely expressed its satisfaction with the programs given during the week. At the close of the performance ticket holders were busy with pencils indicating the numbers which had best pleased them before surrendering their tickets.

The Sunday program was entirely devoted to the lecture by Lela M. Blomfield on New Zealand and the Maori followed by demonstrations by native singers, five in number.

The speaker described the beauty and fertility of the island which, she said, is not larger than the state of Colorado. According to her account it is little but Oh my! The rainfall per year is 50 to 120 inches and sometimes there is a precipitation of 12 inches in a single storm. For a long time it was apparently uninhabited. Then it was occupied by a colony of Maori who migrated from the Hawaiian Islands and who traveled 1500 miles in canoes lashed together in a fleet. Tradition says that they arrived with their dead hanging over the boat sides, thirsting and starving, but though they were thus reduced their first act was to have a battle to determine which of the tribes represented in the immigration should have dominance. They distributed themselves and have left ruins beautifully carved to mark their chosen locations.

The natives who are fast becoming civilized and educated, now live for the most part in a portion of the island where hot springs bubble up out of the ground, setting their bomb-shaped huts in small spaces left between the springs. These springs serve them in place of fire for they make ovens warmed by the steam from underneath in which their fish and meat and vegetables are cooked as in a fireless cooker, or their kettles are hung in the boiling springs. These also serve as bath tubs and it is not uncommon to see an old chief making his ablutions in the pool in which his dinner is cooking with the neighbors and tourists going and coming all around him.

She confirmed the statements made by Hon. Charles H. Poole who spoke earlier in the week to the effect that not until 60 years ago did white men settle on the island and take possession of it in the name of Great Britain.

Mrs. Blomfield had much to say about the laws of New Zealand and political conditions. The tendency of the administration is, she said, to settle on an equitable basis the many problems incidental to our present day industrial life. New Zealand has the initiative and referendum. All utilities including the railroads and telegraph systems are owned by the government and students are given free transportation. When receipts exceed a certain per cent fares are reduced. There is compulsory medical inspection and where necessary compulsory medical treatment provided by the state. When a corporation shows signs of becoming a monopoly the government takes up the business and puts the corporation out of business. The eight-hour law is universal and Sunday is strictly observed as a day of rest. She referred to the old age pension law which grants to every citizen lacking an income from other sources after the age of 65 a sum equivalent to $250 a year which, she explained, goes further in New Zealand than here because the cost of living is not so great.

Mrs. Blomfield also described the workings of the compulsory arbitration law for the settlement of labor and capital disputes on an equitable basis. The land purchase act was another measure described under which owners of large tracts not in use are required to sell them to the state which cuts them up and encourages farmers to go onto them. The tax on idle land is so heavy as to make its possession unprofitable while on the other hand the farmer is not taxed until his property reaches a value of $2500.

To keep out undesirable citizens a very heavy poll tax is imposed and New Zealand does not have an Oriental problem.

The origin of the word "Anzac" which stands for Australian, New Zealand Army Corps, was explained and the pathetic story told of how these troops were thrown into Gallipoli and there mown down by the enemy some of them before they even disembarked. More than 100,000 men went from this small island which was not unprepared when the war broke out. For many years military training had been compulsory and in 1914 there were 5,500 trained men ready to go out of a male population of 575,000.

The natives are rapidly attaining their full mental development, Mrs. Blomfield says and will soon leave their picturesque old life behind them. Another generation will look in vain for the old-time Maori.

The thanks of the management for courtesies received from Glendale citizens were expressed by Mrs. Dye, who has directed the Chautauqua and by Guy Mariner, the ticket seller who is a New Zealander, and in this country for the first time, also by the young woman who has directed the Junior Chautauqua.

The Maori singers were then announced and came onto the platform, barefooted, the men in straight robes and capes of tufted blanket cloths, the women draped with similar blankets which were doubtless intended to represent the skins with which they were formerly clothed. The women had flowing, fluffy black hair. The man who acted as spokesman was the male soloist, and the woman who took the lead in the games and ceremonial exercises also gave solo numbers, but the greater part of the musical program was in choruses similar in execution and effect to songs of the Hawaiians, very beautiful in the harmonious blending of tone. The games shown called for dexterity of hand and quickness of sight and the poi dance was a pretty demonstration of skill in the manipulation of balls on the end of a string. There was an exhibition of a tribal meeting, of a warrior dance, and of a wedding, all of which were followed by the audience with the greatest interest. The spokesman referred to, who is a fine-looking, educated man, expressed his appreciation of their reception saying it was the largest and best audience they had yet faced.

The closing numbers given by the singers were the farewell song composed as a tribute to their Maori soldiers when 4000 out of a population of 50,000 left the island for the trenches overseas. It is a beautiful melody and will doubtless become one of the national airs of New Zealand. It was followed by the familiar "Aloha," the farewell of the singers and of the Chautauqua to Glendale for this year.

"Mike."

"Phwat?"

"I was just thinkin'. After we get out of the trenches an' back home again how nice an' peaceful that old boiler-factory will sound to us!"—Successful Farming.
